WAR FUND APPEAL

Acting Governor Gives Radio Address

Brondensting an appeal over Z.B.W. last night on behalf of the war fund started on June 17 by the South China Morning Post and the Hongkong Telegraph, His Excellency the Officer Administering the Govern-

There must always, I suppose, be a tendency in a colony ten thousand miles hway from the seat of war to eget a feeling, unless one guards against it, that this is not altogether our war. We have been told to carry on out here as well as we can on a normal peace-time basis. We have been told that our man-power is better employed in Hongkong than on the field of battle. And so far our trade has prospered and the revenue has poured in.

It is true that the War Organisaa week apart from valuable contributions in kind. It is true that the of assistance. But it was left to Mr. Ben Wylle, with a touch on the pulse of public opinion which Hitler himself might well envy, to launch his blitzkrieg of a drive for funds at the very moment when the fortunes of war were not looking too rosy from our point of view, and when everyone in the Colony was longing to do tions with the Ford works for the something concrete to help in the war | manufacture of Rolls Royce aeroplane effort even though fate would not allow him to join the fighting forces. manufacture similar engines for the in person.

The immediate success of the drive for contributions must I think have astonished even the most optimistic of its sponsors, and the only fear perhaps is that the vast figures which are published daily in the list of contributors may dissuade some who are still hesitating. It is to these, and more particularly to those who feel that a small contribution is hardly worth inaking, that I am trying to appeal to-night.

Charging the Government had jumped from one policy to another four times in the past few months, Baron Lloyd of Dolobran, speaking in the House of Lords to-day, initiated the debate on the naval and military situation as affected by the Anglo-German agreement. He expressed uncasiness at the disturbing atmosphere created in France and Italy by the action of the Government unilaterally giving to Germany the right to ignore the terms governing her naval strength, contained in the Versalles Treaty. It is something to the good that Ger-many has pledged herself never again many has pledged herself never again to resort to unrestricted submarine warfare of the type which caused such terror and resulted in the loss of so many non combatant lives during the Great War. The undertaking to adhere to the restrictions on submarine activities laid down in the London Naval Treaty is without condition of any kind, whether other Powers follow suit or not. The pity is that it has not been found possible as yet for the major nations of the submarine as an instrument of war. Both Britain and Germany are in favour of such abolition, but, in the absence of agreement by other Powers, they naturagreement by other Powers, they naturally cannot afford to jeopardize, their security by acting alone in the matter.

In these days, when, distance has been annihilated and frontiers become ridiculous, we should look, not for competition n armaments, but for a pooling of re fources against any country that breaks the peace without previous reference to an impartial authority. This involves no opposing camps, which mean to fight it out sooner or laier. We must aim at the prevention of war rather than its preparation. But we cannot get a world understanding on the cheap, We shall have to make some sacrifice of sovereign-ty all round and look with Tennyson's eyes for a federation of the world, but in one branch only of administration, vir, that of defence.

ODDITIES

Speculation on the possibilities of Hitler's boasted "mystery" weapon has given the world no reason for alarm.

Everyone has heard too often in the past of death rays, of robot submarines controlled by wireless, and of super-guns that might strafe London from the coast of Holland.

And one American journalist went so far as to say that the great strategic highways of Germany were laid down for the speedy passage of tremendous land battleships!

Each of these might have its possibilities, fantastic as they seem; yet rumours of their existence are still greeted with equanimity, for war produces few such surprise weapons.

EACH of these might have its possibilities, fantastic as they seem; yet rumors of their existence are greeted with equanimity, for there is all history to show that effective surprise weapons happen seldom. Only a week or two ago, cold, logical reasoning at Washington quickly killed the idea of 75,000-ton battleships for the U.S. Navy. Such leviathanstwice the size of the average modern capital shipmight indeed have proved formidable, but they would be appallingly costly, and, in the present state of naval warfare, they are unnecessary.

--- Centuries before mechanised warfare, invention was turned to the service of war. There was, of course, the wooden horse of Troy, used by the Greeks in 1184 B.C. And that that great mathematician, Archimedes, is credited with having focussed the sun's rays, and used them with great effect against the Roman fleels at Syracuse in 212 B.C. CHINA'S artful contribution to the queer side of war, was the "stinkpot," which discharged such an offensive odour that the enemy were forced to clap their hands to their noses and abandon the fight! An anticipation of gas warfare without its ruthlessness. Long before Drake launched his fire ships against the Spanish fleets, the Greeks, Romans and Afghans knew the diabolical uses of fire in war. The chronicles relate how the Mahmud of Ghazni's archers fell upon the Indian Jats with vessels of naphthu. Much more terrible, however, was "Greek Fire," a highly combustible and unquenchable substance used by the Romans and the Greeks by the Byzantine Empire.

What must surely have been the greatest cannon in the history of the world stood for many years in front of the main facade of the Kremlin Barracks in Moscow. Cast in 1580, its bore was 40 inches! Each cannon ball weighed nearly two tons.

It is not hard to believe that such a ponderous and ornate piece of ordnance was never used on the field of battle. In fact, probably the sole reason for its existence was as a symbol of the magnificence of the Tsars.

INCREDIBLE though it may seem to certain of the nations today, there was once a war plan "too terrible" to be used. That was the judgment passed by the British War Office on a scheme submitted by Admiral Cochrane, Earl of Dundonald. The nature of the plan was never disclosed, but some people think it entailed the use of a polsonous gas.

Even a freak may serve a purpose. Who could have thought that the ugly new ironclads, Monitor and Merrimac, of the American Civil War, were destined to revolutionise construction throughout the navies of the world? Furthermore, to the tiny, but heavily armoured gunboat Monitor, when the signal honour of winning the world's first battle between ironclads.

IT was a great day for the Federals when the Monitor engaged her opponent in the Hampton Roads. Both were warships unique in naval history. Both were untried weapons, save that the deconclusively proved the futility of the old three-decker in the face of an ironclad vessel.

But in the Monitor, the Merrimacfound an opponent worthy of her steel, for the Monitor's deficiency in guns was more than off-set by the impregnability of her solid armour plating, As much a fallure as the Monitor was a success were the "popoffkas" of the Imperial Russian Navy. In 1875, Vice-Admiral Popoff set out to build the ideal floating gunplatform. It was a circular ship, heavily armed and armoured, and driven by no less than six propellers rotating at different speeds. The first of this class, the Nov-

-gorod, was a bitter disappointment. Although reasonably sound in theory, on her trials she spun glddily, like a roundabout!

FANCIFUL invention was at its peuk at the time when British senpower was climbing to its zenith. In 1892, an American, Commodore Folger, invented his Dynamic Ram, a cigar-shaped freak with two fore and at aft guns designed to hurl huge masses of dynamite as acrial torpedoes. Not unlike it in conception were Arles the Rom, designed two years later by the Earl of Mayo, and Gathmann's boat of 1900. This latter vessel was thierded to be unusually fast, and the great forward gun was to have thrown; 600 1b. of gun-cotton at the rate of 2,000 feet per second.

Strange Freaks Down The Centuries

But perhaps the most ambitious and spectacular of all projects was the submersible cruiser discussed by Imperial Russia for operations in the Baltic during the 1914-18 war. This colossal submarine, 400 feet long and of 4,500 tons displacement, was to have been equipped with 36 torpedo tubes, seven 4.7 inch quick-firing guns, and 120 mines! Her chief characteristic of defence was to have been the ability to fire all guns with only the turrels awash: That feature was later embodied in a British submarine, which housed a monster

THE last war was probably responsible for more strange and original weapons than were ever divulged; but the one striking success was certainly the tank. Under the theory of winning the war by tremendous concentrations force, three mighty battle-cruisers were built. They are now the aircraft-carriers Glorious, Furious, and the ill-fated Courageous.

They were originally part of a huge war-time plan to build until the navy had reached a position of unassailable world supremacy. Larger, faster and stronger than any battle-cruiser previously designed, they should have been a painful thorn in the side of the enemy battle-fleets; but they were unable to bear the tearing strain Imposed by the 18-inch gun batteries, and were given a new lease of life as hybrid aircraft-carriers.

Since last September, every War Office has been offered hundreds of inventions which, in theory, would win the war. In some may be the germs of real "secret weapons"; but, as history proves, the steady march of evolution is more reliable if less amusing.

.FOR_ONE_THING,-it's-expensive if you're not the right type.

Remember how you tried to get gid of your faded tan last September? It goes like that—four months trying to get brown, eight months going to every length to get pale and smooth again.

the one woman in ten who goes coffee colour without any pain or trouble. No, if you are one of the prown to purple with varying degrees of pain. That's my opinion; yours may differ. But look back on the bleaching creams you . bought last autumn and remember the lovely sun tan you can get out of a jar nowadays. Sun tanning makes most skins coarse, too.

If you decide to keep your skin as it is, got one of the sunproof creams to use under your powder. These creams cut out the tanning rays from the sun altogether. They are fairly heavy, so you can use a darker powder over them, a rust healthy. Then in the evening you can look fragile again.

If you really do think a thrown skin suits you, buy one of the sun tanning oils. These are not sticky

Is it worth it? Yes, if you are nowadays, but thin and quick-drying. They will let you get brown without pain by cutting out the burning rays from the sun. Use other nine and go shades from them on your arms and legs, too. Half an hour in the sun is long enough for the first day, and be very careful of your shoulder blades, thighs and the Vat the base your neck. The skin here turns flery with very little sun. A winter of care will be ruined in a day if you sit in the sun without, tinted glasses. You will see, after a few hours, the tiny lines creeping round your eyes.

Whether you are going to tan or not, do not wash your face with soap and water before you go out in the morning; lukewarm water colour lipstick and look very is enough. Neither wash when you get home in the evening. Clean your face with cold cream, and if you have caught the sun in spite of all your efforts, paint on columine lotion or smear on zine ointment.

Fish is a standby salad days

EVERY one likes sainds in the warmer weather, but a lot of people feel there is not enough nourishment in them eaten alone. This year, with meat rationed, housewives are wondering what they can serve instead of cold meat with the lettuces, radishes and encumbers that are getting so good and cheap now.

Fish, and not only the classic cold boiled salmon, is excellent with salads, a fact which is not appreciated as much as it ought to be.

What fish shall you get? One of the best fish to be eaten cold is gurnard (or gurnet). It is in full season now and quite cheap. Your fishmonger may not have any the first time you ask, but he will get some for you.

THE economical way is to cat the fish hot first, and to save half of it for a salad. Boil the fish in not too much water, with a couple of onlons, a few bay leaves, and a dozen or so peppercorns. Eat it with melted butter sauce, or with a white sauce. . A good salad to eat with cold fish is made by adding cold boiled haricot beans (or, better still, the little dried green beans calledflageolets) to your lettuce, throwing in some slices of cucumber (with the rind left on) and a few spring onlons.

The fish may be either served whole, or it may be flaked and mixed in with the salad. A plain oil and vinegar dressing should be used, or, for those who prefer it, oil and lemon juice.

EMPIRE IN ARMS-BURMA Land of teak and oil

BURMA is in the peculiar position of being one of the earliest countries in the East with which Britain started trading, yet Burma is the latest territory in the Empire to be granted separate government.

Old "John Company" (the East India Company) had agents and factories at three centres in Burma in 1612, but constitutionally Burma was not separated from India until April 1, 1937.

Burma now has a Governor, with a Council of Ministers, and a Legislature of two Chambers, the Senate and the House of Representatives, with 132 elected members.

The Legislature controls 192,158 square miles, while Burmese chiefs in the Shan States'still govern a further 62,000 square miles. Towards the far north and east of this. great, fertile country there are still more than 7,000 square miles of unudministered territory.

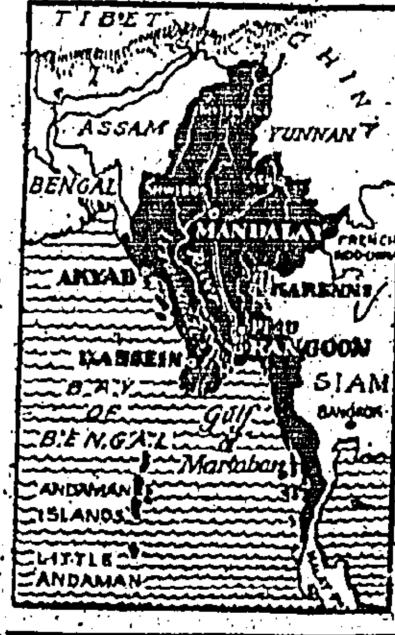

Monastorics

Dominating the transport system of the interior, which has more than 10,000 miles of roads and, 2,000 miles of railways, is the great Irrawaddy River, which is navigable up to Bhamo, 900 miles from

In overy village in Burma there is a Buddhist monastery, where the three are 7,000 schools and colleges, with arts agricultural, medical, and veterinary colleges. More than 750,000 pupils, from a total population of fewer than 15,-000,000 attend.

Most of Burma's external trade is with India-but Great Britain comes, in fact, 85 per cent, of Burma's exports are supplied to British Empire countries, which supply 74 per cent. of het imports.

-Marshal Petain himself was one of the guaranters. He and his Government then approved the armistice terms which provide that the French elect, with all its armament, shall pass under German or Italian control. Never was there a more wanton surrender. Petain's Government may chave believed it impossible to save more than the scrap of France. "Accordingly they have done their best to throw away the French Empire too, and leave the people of France; without hope of help from ubroad, to be stripped to the bone. "The safety of our own country and Empire is, as Mr. Churchill said, powerfully though not decisively, affected by what happens to the French Fleet.' We may well abstain from conjecture on the trend of events and rely upon the patience and resolution which we are promised in the measures taken by our own Government."

What Can Be Salvaged? The Daily Mail, also commenting on. Mr. Churchill's-speech, writes: "What can we salvage from the ruin of France? Behind us we still have the unbreakable spirit of the French people. The French Empire solidly affirms its loyalty to the cause of freedom. How can we organise the scattered remnants of French powers "Mr. Churchill hopes that the Colonial Empire may become the seat of the Government pledged, in Mr. Churchill's words, to fight on. The British people have realised instinctively that, in Mr. Churchill's words, the safety of Great Britain is powerfully, though not decisively, affected by what happens to the French Fleet. ."The Prime Minister was unable to give an assurance that this powerful arm would be available to aid and succour Britain in the coming struggle. The Government did al that was possible to secure it. But Marshall Petain had signed it away to Hitler. One of the new Bordenux Ministers said yesterday that, Potain and given himself to France. But after the German and Italian occupation how much of France is left?" -Reuter.

Hongkong listeners must have hrilled earlier this week to hear the Daventry broadcast of the arrival of the new contingents of Australian and New Zealand troops in England. proceeding to Palestine and Egypt. The arrival of these Diggers in the Homeland again emphasises the world significance of Australia and New Zealand, particularly in the event of a sudden development in the Pacific.

-British-nurtured-Australia-is-the antipodean stronghold of democracy. In area, this continent is approximately equal to the United States; in population it approaches seven millions. Australia is rich in gold! silver, lead, zinc, tin, copper. It yields coal, dry chemicals, fertilisers; is world famous for exports of wool, beef, wheat and mution. But these are only material symbols of its underlying wealth of clear-thinking exemplified in a democracy.

Hewing to the line of much that is best in democratic principles 'the Commonwealth of Australia and the Dominion of New Zealand stand as bulwarks for the smaller democratic units of the Pacific: Dutch, British and French possessions in the East Indies archipelago to the north, and farther north, the Philippines, French Indo-China and the British Colonies. in one of which renders of this newspaper reside.

It is said with reason that the future of democracy in the Pacific may be shaped in Queensland. -This rich. State is vulnerable to attack directed through the largely unprotected hinterland of the west. And Queensland is the gateway to the choice domnins of south-eastern Aus

But totalitarian invasion has not yet come. Australians prayerfully hope that it may never eventuate. Their democratic civilisation has been nehleved through pence and order: force has been alien to the Australian. By the same token, deification of the State is incomprehensible to him. In no country of the world ivould totalitarianism meet tougher resistance than in Australia. For this reassuring fact many peoples whose lands border the Pacific Ocean may one day be thankful.

BOWLS TOURNAMENT AND TENNIS LEAGUE SHOULD BE AFFECTED

(By "Tinker")

THE MORE RIGID PROGRAMME of training for the Hongkong Volunteers, of which I, as one of the Corps, fully approve, will probably have its offect on the local sports competitions now in being. The rain over the past few weeks has done Water Polo nothing to improve the progress of either the lawn bowls tournament or the tennis league, and because of this further postponements are definitely to be avoided.

At a time like this it is not to be considered that sport should interfere with military training, though the position may, and probably will be, the other way around.

Those, who at the beginning i of the season advocated the Swimming cessation of all competitions, probably had the present situation in view, but I was not then nor am I now in favour of those proposals. What it is and the games must be played the best they can.

In thinking of this training and the Colony's sport, I had the position of the tennis League in mind more than any other. BRITISH BADLY

Britain and United States does not iffect possible future orders for planes and engines for the United States, declared a spokesman of the National Defence Commission.

The proposed order for aeroplane engines, to be divided between Britain and United States, fell through, the spokesman explained, because two-thirds of the engines were intended for Britain and the number remaining after Mr. Ford's refusal to manufacture for Britain was insufficient for mass production methods. > The Cabinet in Berlin this evening adopted a law introducing a period of universal compulsory labour service for males as a preliminary to military training. It is understood the period of service will be six months. The Labour Army will be limited to 200,000 men during the coming year, and will be composed of the 1915 Class of Army conscripts, whose service is compulsory as well as volunteers, who will be accepted from their 18th year and onward.

Charging the Government had jumped from one policy to another four times in the past few months, Baron Lloyd of Dolobran, speaking in the House of Lords to-day, initiated the debate on the naval and military situation as affected by the Anglo-German agreement. He expressed uneasiness at the disturbing atmosphere created in France and Italy by the action of the Government unilaterally giving to Germany the right to ignore the terms governing her naval strength, contained in the Versailles Treaty. Germany, he said, was allowed a 35 per cent, ratio with the British naval strength, whereas under the Washington Treaty, France's and Italy's ratios were limited to 32 per cent.

limited to 32 per cent.

Lord Howe, Conservative, considered the agreement likely to lead to something very different to arms limitation.

"With the German Navy 35 per cent. of the strength of the British, it will be impossible in the near future for the British Battle Fleet to go east of Suez."
he said. "Thus the effect of the Singapore base is nullified."

It is something to the good that Germany has pledged herself never again to resort to unrestricted submarine warfare of the type which caused such terror and resulted in the loss of so many non combatant. Ilves during the Great War. The undertaking to adhere to the restrictions on submarine activities laid down in the London Naval Treaty is without condition of any kind, whether other Powers follow suit or not. The pliy is that it has not been found possible as yet for the major nations of the submarine as an instrument of war. Both Britain and Germany are in favour of Britain and Germany are in favour of such abolition, but, in the absence of such abolition, but, in the absence of agreement by other Powers, they naturally cannot afford to leopardise their security by acting alone in the matter. In these days, when, distance has been annihilated and frontiers become ridiculous, we should look, not for competition in armaments, but for a pooling of resources against any country that breaks the peace without previous reference to an impartial authority. This involves no opposing camps, which mean to fight the opposing camps, which mean to fight it out sooner or later. We must aim at the prevention of war rather than its preparation. But we cannot get a world understanding on the cheap. We shall have to make some sacrifice of sovereign ty all round and look with Tennyson's eyes for a federation of the world, but in one branch only of administration, vir, that of defence.

Speculation on the possibilities of Hitler's boasted "mystery" weapon has given the world no reason for alarm.

Everyone has heard too often in the past of death rays, of robot submarines controlled by wireless, and of super-guns that might strafe London from the coast of Holland.

And one American journalist went so far as to say that the great strategic highways of Germany were laid down for the speedy passage of tremendous land battleships!

Each of these might have its possibilities, fantastic as they seem; yet rumours of their existence are still greeted with equanimity, for war produces few such surprise weapons.

EACH of these might have its possibilities, fantastle us they seem; yet rumors of their existence are greeted with equanimity, for there is all history to show that effective surprise weapons happen seldom. Only a week or two ago, cold, logical reasoning at Washington quickly killed the idea of 75,000-ton battleships for the U.S. Navy. Such levinthanstwice the size of the average modern capital shipmight indeed have proved formidable, but they would be appallingly costly, and, in the present state of naval warfare, they are unnecessary.

Centuries before mechanised warfare, invention was turned to the service of war. There was, of course, the wooden horse of Troy, used by the Greeks in 1184 B.C. And that that great This "elbow canmathematician, Archimedes; is credited with having focussed the sun's rays, and used them with great effect against the Roman fleets at Syracuse in 212 B.C. CHINA'S artful contribution to the queer side of war, was the "stinkpot," which discharged such an offensive odour that the enemy were forced to clap their hands to their noses and abandon the fight! An anticipation of gas warfare without its ruthlessness. Long before Drake launched his fire ships against the Spanish fleets, the Greeks, Romans and Afghans knew the diabolical uses of fire in The chronicles relate how the Mahmud of Ghazni's archers fell upon the Indian Jats with vessels of naphtha. Much more terrible, however, was "Greek Fire," a highly combustible and unquenchable substance used by the Romans and the Greeks by the Byzantine Empire. What must surely have been the greatest cannon in the history of the world stood for many years in front of the main facade of the Kremlin Barracks in Moscow. Cast in 1586, its bore was 40 inches! Each cannon ball weighed nearly two tons. It is not hard to believe that such a ponderous and ornate piece of ordnance was never used on the field of battle. In fact, probably the sole reason for its existence was as a symbol of the mugnificence of the Tsars.

INCREDIBLE though it may seem to certain of the nations today, there was once a war plan "too terrible" to be used. That was the judgment passed by the British War Office on a scheme submitted by Admiral Cochrane, Earl of Dundonald. The nature of the plan was never disclosed, but some people think it entailed the use of a poisonous gas.

Even a freak may serve a purpose. Who could have thought that the ugly new ironclads, Monitor and Merrimac, of the American Civil War, were destined to revolutionise construction throughout the navies of the world? Furthermore, to the tiny, but heavily armoured gunboat Monitor, when the signal honour of winning the world's first buttle between ironclads.

IT was a great day for the Federals when the Monitor engaged her opponent in the Hampton Roads. Both were warships unique in naval history. Both were untried weapons, save that the depredations of the Merrimae had conclusively proved the futility of the old three-decker in the face of an ironclad vessel.

But in the Monitor, the Merrimac found an opponent worthy of her steel, for the Monitor's deficiency in guns was more than off-set by the impregnability of her solid armour plating.

As much a failure as the Monitor was a success were the "popoffkas" of the Imperial Russian Navy. In 1875, Vice-Admiral Poposi set out to build the ideal floating gunplatform. It was a circular ship, heavily armed and armoured, and ariven by no less than six propellers rotating at different speeds. The first of this class, the Novgorod, was a bitter disappointment.

dily, like a roundabout! FANCIFUL invention was at its peak at the time when British seapower was climbing to its zenith. In 1892, an American, Commodore Folger, invented his Dynamic Ram, a cigar-shaped freak with two fore and at aft guns designed to hurl huge masses of dynamite as.

Although reasonably sound in theory, on her trials she spun gidaerial torpedoes. Not unlike it in conception were Aries the Ram, designed two years 'later by the Earl of Mayo, and Gathmann's boat of 1900. This latter vessel was intended to be unusually fast, and the great forward gun was to have thrown 600 lb. of gun-cotton at the rate of 2,000 feet per second.

FOR WOMEN

worth brown? getting

...FOR ONE THING, it's expensive if you're not the right type.

Remember how you tried to get rid of your faded tan last September? It goes like that—four months trying to get brown, eight months going to every length to get pale and smooth again.

the one woman in ten who goes coffee colour without any pain or trouble. No, if you are one of the other nine and go shades from prown to purple with varying degrees of pain. That's my opinion; yours may differ. But look back on the bleaching creams you bought last autumn and remember the lovely sun tan you can get out of a jar. nowadays. Sun tanning makes most skins coarse, too.

HONGKONG TELEGRAPH

If you decide to keep your skin as it is, get one of the sunproof creams to use under your powder. These creams cut out the tanning rays from the sun altogether. Theyare fairly heavy, so you can use a darker powder over them, a rust colour lipstick and look very healthy. Then in the evening you can look fragile again.

If you really do think a thrown skin sults you, buy one of the sun tanning oils. These are not sticky

Is it worth it? Yes, if you are nowadays, but thin and quick-drying. They will let you get brown without pain by cutting out the burning rays from the sun. Use them on your arms and legs, too. Half an hour in the sun is long enough for the first day, and be very careful of your shoulder blades, thighs and the V at the base. of your neck. The skin here turns flery with very little sun. A winter of care will be ruined in a day if you sit in the sun without tinted glasses. You will see, after a few hours, the tiny lines creeping round your eyes...

Whether you are going to tan or not, do not wash your face with soap and water before you go out in the morning; lukewarm water is enough. Neither wash when you get home in the evening. Clean your face with cold cream, and if you have caught the sun in spite of all your efforts, paint on calamine lotion or smear on zine ointment.

Fish is a standby in the salad days

EVERY one likes salads in the warmer weather, but a lot of people feel there is not enough nourishment in them eaten alone. This year, with ment rationed, housewives are wondering what they can serve instead of cold meat with the lettuces, radishes and eucumbers that are getting so good and cheap now.

Fish, and not only the classic cold boiled salmon, is excellent with salads, a fact which is not appreclated as much as it ought to be.

What fish shall you get? One of the best fish to be eaten cold is gurnard (or gurnet). It is in full season now and quite cheap. Your fishmonger may not have any the first time you ask, but he will get some for you.

THE economical way is to eat the fish hot first, and to save half of it for a salad. Boil the fish in not too much water, with a couple of onions, a few bay leaves, and a dozen or so peppercorns. Eat it with melted butter sauce, or with a white sauce.

A good salad to eat with cold fish is made by adding cold boiled haricot beans (or, better still, the little dried green beans called flageolets) to your lettuce, throwing in some slices of cucumber (with the-rind-left on) and a few-spring-onions.

The fish may be either served whole, or it may be flaked and mixed in with the salad. A plain oil and vinegar dressing should be used, or, for those who prefer it, oil and lemon juice.

EMPIRE IN ARMS-BURMA Land of teak and oil

BURMA is in the peculiar position of being one of the carliest countries in the East with which Britain started trading, yet Burma is the latest territory in the Empire to be granted separate government.

Old ."John Company" (the East India Company) had agents and factories at three centres in Burma in 1612, but constitutionally Burma was not separated from India until April 1, 1937.

Burma now has a Governor, with a Council of Ministers, and a Legislature of two Chambers, the Senate and the House of Representatives, with 132 elected members.

The Legislature controls 192,158 square miles, while Burmese chiefs in the Shan States still govern a further 62,000 square miles. Towards the far north and east of this great, fertile country there are still more than 7,000 square miles of unadministered territory.

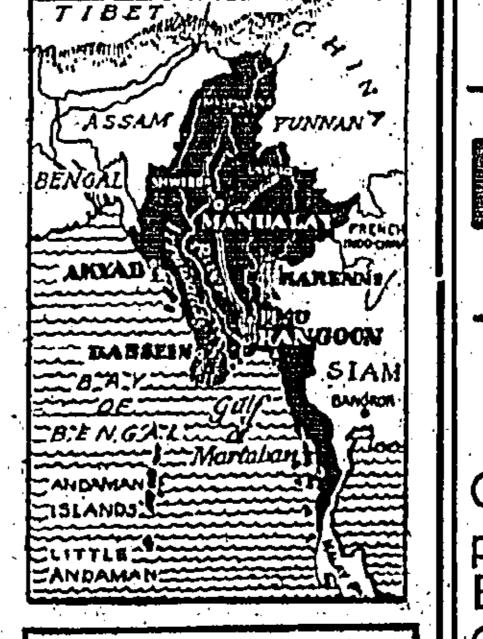

Monasteries .

Dominating the transport system of the interior, which has more than miles of railways, is the great Irrawaddy River, which is navigable up to Bhamo 900 miles from

In every village in Burma there. is a Buddhist monnstery, where the three are 7,600 schools and colleges, with arts, agricultural, medical, and veterinary colleges. More than 750,000 pupils, from a total population of fewer than 15,-000,000 attend.

Most of Burma's external trade is with India, but Great Britain comes second, both as buyer and supplier. in fact 85 per cent, of Burma's exports are supplied to British Empire countries, which supply 74 per cent. of her imports. 🐇 proceeding to Palestine and Egypt. The arrival of these Diggers in the Homeland again emphasises the world significance of Australia and New Zealand, particularly in the event of a sudden development in the Pacific.

British-nurtured Australia is the antipodean stronghold of democracy. In-area;-this-continent-is-approximately equal to the United States; in population it approaches seven millions. Australia is rich in gold, silver, lead, zinc, tin, copper. It yields coal, dry chemicals, fertilisers; is world famous for exports of wool, beef, wheat and mutton. But these are only material symbols of its underlying wealth of clear-thinking exemplified in a democracy.

Hewing to the line of much that is best in democratic principles the Commonwealth of Australia and the Dominion of New Zealand stand as bulwarks for the smaller democratic units of the Pacific: Dutch, British and French possessions in the East Indies archipelago to the north, and farther north, the Philippines, French Indo-China and the British Colonies, in one of which readers of this newspaper reside.

It is said with reason that the future of democracy in the Pacific may be shaped in Queensland. This rich State is vulnerable to attack directed through the largely unprotected hinterland of the west. And Queensland is the gateway to the choice domains of south-eastern Aus-

But totalitarian invasion has not yet come. Australians prayerfully hope that it may never eventuate. Their democratic civilisation has been achieved through peace and order; force has been alien to the Australian. By the same token, deificulion of the State is incomprehensible to him. In no country of the world would totalitarianism meet tougher resistance than in Australia. For this reassuring fact many peoples whose lands border the Pacific Ocean may one day be thankful.

BOWLS TOURNAMENT AND TENNIS LEAGUE SHOULD BE AFFECTED

(By "Tinker")

THE MORE RIGID PROGRAMME of training for the Hongkong Volunteers, of which I, as one of the Corps, fully approve, will probably have its effect on the local sports competitions now in being. The rain over the past few weeks has done Water Polo nothing to improve the progress of either the lawn bowls tournament or the tennis league, and because of this further postponements are definitely to be avoided.

At a time like this it is not to be considered that sport should interfere with military training, though the position may, and probably will be, the other way around.

Those, who at the beginning of the season advocated the Swimming cessation of all competitions, probably had the present situation in view, but I was not then nor am I now in favour of those proposals. What it is and the games must be played the best they can. In thinking of this training and the Colony's sport, I had the position of the tennis League in mind more than any other. This league is the only one that conforms to a regular programme in that "A" Division International Amateur Swimming The Navy backs, Willis and Coombs Rubbard

CLUTCH:--Keep in mind that there are really only two correct positions of the Clutch pedal-fully out or fully in. Make it a rule to keep the foot off the clutch pedal except when actually shifting gears and to allow the clutch to engage gently. "Riding the Clutch" which means to drive with the foot resting on the pedal, is bad practise, as the clutch may then be sometimes incompletely engaged. It is harmful to the clutch, resulting in unnecessary and rapid wear of the release bearing and the clutch disc linings.

British Press Condemns Petain Cabinet

London, June/28.
Although the Daily Telegraph, commenting on Mr. Churchill's speech in the House of Commons, strongly condemns Marshal Petaln and his supporters, Lie paper adds, 'We know that the heart of France is not in them." . Under the sub-heading "France and

' "Mr. Churchill looked forward to the establishment in the French Empire of a Government which would represent the spirit of France and strive for her liberation and victory with the energy of her great days. "That is the task in which we must labour with all our might, for the cause of liberty is indissolubly one and the issue is now starkly set between resurgent barbarism and the tree civilisation of the British Empire. Let us spare reproaches on the Government at Bordeaux.

Puppets In Hitler's Hands

"Whatever may have been the intentions of Marshal Petain, he has allowed himself and the Cabinet to become puppets in the hands of littler. The history of the Bordeaux Ministry's conduct of affairs in France, which Mr. Churchill gave yesterday, Frenchmen will best judge, An ally left to fight for France alone must regret that in the great crisis she fell under the leadership of such men as these, but we know that the neart of France is not in them.

"At the request of M. Reynaud the British Government released France from her solemh pleage to enter into no separate negotiations with Germany on condition that the French Fleet should come to British ports while the terms for the armisace were asked. Then Marsha Petain took office and began to negotiate—if his method to surrender should be called negotiation-without

"Many solemn assurances were given that the French Fleet would not fall into the hands of Germany -Marshai Petain himself was one of the guarantors. He and his Government then approved the armistice terms which provide that the French ricet, with all its armament, shall KING, for one further term of pass under German or Italian control. Never was there a more wanton surrender. Petain's Government may have believed it impossible to Intending bidders are advised save more than the scrap of France. "Accordingly they have done their

This sum affected by what happens to the will be refunded on payment of French Fleet.' We may well abstain from conjecture on the -trend of events and rely upon the patience and resolution which we are promised in the measures taken by our own Government." What Can Be Salvaged?

The Daily Mail. also commenting on Mr. Churchill's speech, writes: "What can we salvage from the ruin of France? Behind us we still have the unbreakable spirit of the French people. The French Empire solidly affirms its loyalty to the cause of reedom. How can we organise the scattered remnants of French power?

"Mr. Churchill hopes that the Colonial Empire may become the seat of the Government pledged, in it. Churchill's words, to fight on. The British people have realised in-stinctively that, in Mr. Churchill's words, the safety of Great Britain is powerfully, though not decisively, affected, by what happens to the French Fleet.

"The Prime Minister was unable to give an assurance that this powerful arm would be available to aid and succour Britain in the coming struggle. The Government did all that was possible to secure it. But Marshall Petain had signed it away to Hitler. One of the new Bordeaux Ministers said yesterday that Petain id given himself to France. But after the German and Italian occupation how much of France is left? —Reuter.

ODDITIES

Speculation on the possibilities of Hitler's boasted "mystery" weapon has given the world no reason for alarm.

Everyone has heard too often in the past of death rays, of robot submarines controlled by wireless, and of super-guns that might strafe London from the coast of Holland.

And one American journalist went so far as to say that the great strategic highways of Germany were laid down for the speedy passage of tremendous land battleships!

Each of these might have its possibilities, fantastic as they seem; yet rumours of their existence are still greeted with equanimity, for war produces few such surprise weapons. EACH of these might have its possibilities, fantastic as they seem; yet rumors of their existence are grocted with equanimity, for there is all history to show that effective surprise weapons happen seldom. Only a week or two ago, cold, logical reasoning at Washington quickly killed the idea of 75,000-ton battleships for the U.S. Navy. Such leviathanstwice the size of the average modern capital shipmight indeed have proved formidable, but they would be appallingly costly, and, in the present state of naval warfare, they are unnecessary.

Centuries before mechanised warfare, invention was turned to the service of war. There was, of course, the wooden horse of Troy, used by the Greeks in 1184 B.C. And that that great mathematician, Archimedes, is cre-This "elbow candited with having focussed the non,"-perhaps the sun's rays, and used them with remote ancestor of great effect against the Roman the anti-alreraft fleets at Syracuse in 212 B.C. CHINA'S artful contribution to the queer side of war, was the "stinkpot," which discharged such an offensive odour that the enemy were forced to clap their hands to their noses and abandon the fight! An unticipation, of gas warfare without its ruthlessness.

Long before Drake launched his fire ships against the Spanish fleets, the Greeks, Romans and Afghans knew the diabolical uses of fire in The chronicles relate how the Mahmud of Ghazni's archers fell upon the Indian Jats with vessels of naphtha. Much more terrible, however, was "Greek Fire," a highly combustible and unquenchable substance used by the Romans and the Greeks by the Byzantine Empire. What must surely have been the greatest carnon in the history of the world stood for many years in front of the main facade of the Kremlin Barracks in Moscow. Cast in 1588, its bore was 40 inches! Each cannon ball weighed nearly two tons. It is not hard to believe that such a ponderous and ornate piece of ordnance was never used on the field of buttle. In fact, probably the sole reason for its existence was as a symbol of the magni-ficence of the Tsars.

INCREDIBLE though it may seem to certain of the nations today, there was once a wor plan "too terrible" to be used. That was the judgment passed by the. British War Office on a scheme submitted by Admiral Cochrane, Earl of Dundonald. The nature of the plan was never disclosed, but some people think it entailed the use of a polsonous gas.

Even a freak may serve a purpose. Who could have thought that the ugly new ironelads, Monitor and Merrimac, of the American Civil War, were destined to revolutionise construction throughout the navies of the world? Furthermore, to the tiny, but heavily armoured gunboat Monitor, when the signal honour of winning the world's first battle between ironclads.

IT was a great day for the Federals when the Monitor engaged her opponent in the Hampton Roads. Both were warships unique in naval history. Both were untried weapons, save that the de-predations of the Merrimae had conclusively proved the futility of the old three-decker in the face of an ironclad vessel.

But in the Monitor, the Merrimae found an opponent worthy of her steel, for the Monitor's deficiency in guns was more than off-set by the impregnability of her solid armour plating.

. As much a failure as the Monitor was a success were the "popolikas" of the Imperial Russian Navy. In 1875, Vice-Admiral Popolf set out to build the ideal floating gunplatform. It was a circular ship, heavily armed and almoured, and driven by no less than six propellers rotating at different speeds. The first of this class, the Novgorod, was a bitter disappointment. Although reasonably sound in theory, on her trials she spun glddlly, like a roundabout!

FANCIFUL invention was at its peak at the time when British seapower was climbing to its zenith. In 1892, an American, Commodore Folger, invented his Dynamic Ram. a cigar-shaped freak with two fore and at aft guns designed to hurl huge masses of dynamite as aerial torpedoes.

Not unlike it in conception were Arley the Rum, designed two yeurs. later by the Earl of Mayo, and Gathmann's boat of 1900. This latter vessel was intended to be unusually fast, and the great forward gun was to have thrown 600 lb. of gun-cotton at the rate of 2,000 feet per second.

Strange Freaks Down The Centuries

cruisers were built. They are now the aircraft-carriers Glorious, Furious, and the ill-fated Courageous.

They were originally part of a huge war-time plan to build until the navy had reached a position of unassailable world supremney. Larger, faster and stronger than any battle-crulser previously designed, they should have been a painful thorn in the side of the enemy battle-fleets; but they were unable to bear the tearing strain Imposed by the 18-inch gun batteries, and were given a new lease of life as hybrid aircraft-carriers.

Since last September, every War Office has been offered hundreds of inventions which, in theory, would win the war. In some may be the germs of real "secret weapons"; but, as history proves, the steady march of evolution is more reliable if less amusing.

FOR WOMEN

getting brown?

.FOR ONE THING, it's expensive if you're not the right type.

Remember how you tried to get aid of your faded tan last September? It goes like that—four months trying to get brown, eight months going to every length to get pale and smooth again.

Is it worth it? Yes, if you are nowadays, but thin and quick-drytrouble. No, if you are one of the other nine and go shades from prawn to purple with varying degrees of pain. That's my opinion: yours may differ. But look back on the bleaching creams you bought last nuturn and remember the lovely sun tan you can get out of a jar nowadays. Sun tanning makes most skins coarse, too.

HONGKONG TELEGRAPH

If you decide to keep your skin as it is, get one of the sunproof creams to use under your powder. These creams cut out the tanning rays from the sun altogether. They are fairly heavy, so you can use a darker powder over them, a rust colour lipstick and look very healthy. Then in the evening you can look fragile again.

If you really do think a thrown skin suits you, buy one of the sun tanning oils. These are not sticky the one woman in ten who goes ing. They will let you get brown coffee colour without any pain or without pain by cutting out the burning rays from the sun. Use them on your arms and legs, too. Half an hour in the sun is long enough for the first day, and be very careful of your shoulder blades, thighs and the Vat the base of your neck. The skin here turns fiery with very little sun. A winter of care will be ruined in a day if you sit in the sun without tinted glasses. You will see. after a few hours, the tiny lines creeping round your eyes,

Whether you are going to tan or not, do not wash your face with soap and water before you go out in the morning; lukewarm water is enough. Neither wash when you get home in the evening. Clean your face with cold cream, and if you have caught the sun in spite of all your efforts, paint on calamine lotion or smear on zine ointment.

Fish is a standby in the salad days

EVERY one likes salads in the warmer weather, but a lot of people feel there is not enough nourishment in them eaten alone. This year, with meat rationed, housewives are wondering what they can serve instead of cold meat with the lettuces, radishes and cucumbers that are getting so good and cheap now.

Fish, and not only the classic cold boiled salmon, is excellent with salads, a fact which is not appreciated as much as it ought to be.

What fish shall you get? One of the best fish to be eaten cold is gurnard (or gurnet). It is in full season now and quite cheap. Your fishmonger may not have any the first time you ask, but he will get some for you.

THE economical way is to eat the fish hot first, and to save half of it for a salad. Boil the fish in not too much water, with a couple of onions, a few bay leaves, and a dozen or so peppercorns. Eat it with melted butter sauce, or with a white sauce.

A good saind to eat with cold fish is made by adding cold boiled haricot beans (or, better still, the little dried green beans called flageolets) to your lettuce, throwing in some slices of cucumber (with the rind left on) and a few spring onlons.

The fish may be either served whole, or it may be flaked and mixed in with the salad. A plain oil and vinegar dressing should be used, or, for those who prefer it, oil and lemon juice.

EMPIRE IN ARMS-BURMA Land of teak and oil

BURMA is in the peculiar position of being one of the earliest countries in the East with which Britain started trading, yet Burma is the latest terr itory in the Empire to be granted separate government.

Old "John Company" (the East India Company) had agents and factories at three centres in Burma in 1612, but constitutionally Burma was not separated from India until April 1, 1937.

Burma now has a Governor, with a Council of Ministers, and a Legislature of two Chambers, the Senate and the House of Representatives, with 132 elected members.

The Legislature controls 192,158 square miles, while Burmese chiefs in the Shan States still govern a further 62,000 square miles. Towards the far north and east of this great, fertile country there are still more than 7,000 square miles of unadministered territory.

Monasterics

Dominating the transport system of the interior, which has more than 10,000 miles of roads and 2,000 miles of railways, is the great Irrawaddy River, which is havigable up to Bhamo, 900 miles from

In every village in Burma there is a Buddhist monastery, where the three are 7,600 schools and colleges, with arts, agricultural, medical, and veterinary colleges. More than 750,000 pupils, from a total population of fewer than 15,-000,000 attend.

Most of Burma's external trade is with India, but Great Britain comes second, both as buyer and supplier. in fact 85 per cent, of Burma's ex-ports are supplied to British Empire countries, which supply 74 per cent of her imports. Most valuable exports are mineral olis, rice, and timber, especially teak. Main purchases are cotton piece goods, machinery, and metal goods.

The Anzacs

Hongkong listeners must have thrilled earlier this week to hear the Daventry broadcast of the arrival of the new contingents of Australian and New Zealand troops in England. Although they are by no means the first Anzaes to cross the oceans for the war area they are the first to land on English soil since the 1914-18 war, the earlier contingents proceeding to Palestine and Egypt.

The arrival of these Diggers in the Homeland again emphasises the world significance of Australia and New Zealand, particularly in the event of a sudden development in the Pacific.

British-nurtured Australia is the antipodean stronghold of democracy. In area, this continent is approximately equal to the United States; in population it approaches seven millions. Australia is rich in gold, silver, lend, zine, tin, copper. It yields coal, dry chemicals, fertilisers; is world famous for exports of wool, beef; wheat and mutton. But these are only material symbols of its underlying wealth of clear-thinking exemplified in a democracy.

Hewing to the line of much that is best in democratic principles the Commonwealth of Australia and the Dominion of New Zealand stand as bulwarks for the smaller democratic units of the Pacific: Dutch; British and French possessions in the East Indies archipelago to the north, and farther north, the Philippines, French Indo-China and the British Colonies, in one of which readers of this newspaper reside.

It is said with reason that the future of democracy in the Pacific may be shaped in Queensland. This rich State is vulnerable to attack directed through the largely unproteeted hinterland of the west. And Queensland is the gateway to the choice domains of south-eastern Australia.

But totalitarian invasion has not yet come. Australians prayerfully hope that it may never eventuate. Their democratic civilisation has been achieved through peace and order; force has been alien to the Australian. By the same token, delfication of the State is incomprehensible to him. In no country of the world would totalitarianism meet tougher resistance than in Australia. For this reassuring fact many peoples whose lands border the Pacific Ocean may one day be thankful.

FRENCH EMPIRE ANALYSED

Vast, But Has No Dominions

LONDON, June 26 (Reuter) -The fate of the French Empire is a matter of close concern i to all, but many do not know very much about it, said a Professor of Imperial History of Oxford University in a broadcast to-day.

Do we realise that, like the British Empire, it is a great world-wide political and economic structure? That the French flug flies beside the Bri tish in Asia, Africa, America and in all the continents except Australasia? That the same complex of races in all quarters of the earth owe alleginnce to the French Republic as they do to the British Crown?

The French Empire covers 4.250 000 square miles and contains nearly 65,000,000 people, he went on.

No Commonwealth In one respect, it is different from the British Empire. Frenchmen have always been more stay-at-home folk than Englishmen, Scotsmen and Welshmen. Except for the colony of the St. Lawrence, which for many years past now has been happily incorporated in the Dominion of Canada, there are no large French communities oversea. There are no dominions and no commonwealth of nations. The nearest approach to a dominion 1 Algeria, which was occupied years ago. About 1,000,000 Frenchmen live there, beside some 6,000,-000 Arabs.

Algeria has a Governor-General and a Consultative Council, but it is not independent like the British Dominions.

BOWLS TOURNAMENT TENNIS LEAGUE SHOULD BE AFFECTED

(By "Tinker")

THE MORE RIGID PROGRAMME of training for the Hongkong Volunteers, of which I, as one of the Corps, fully approve, will probably have its effect on the local sports competitions now in being. The rain over the past few weeks has done Water Polo nothing to improve the progress of either the lawn bowls tournament or the tennis league, and because of this further postponements are definitely to be avoided.

At a time like this it is not to be considered that sport should interfere with military training, though the position may, and probably will be, the other way around.

Those, who at the beginning of the season advocated the Swimming cessation of all competitions, probably had the present situation in view, but I was not then nor am I now in favour of those proposals. What it is and the games must be played the best they can.

In thinking of this training and the Colony's sport, I had the position of the tennis League in mind more than any other.
